The labels, directions, and boxes are so closely copied, and the signatures such perfect fac similes of the original, that it is very difficult to detect the forgery, but on opening the boxes, which contain the pills, the deception will be apparent. The counterfeit pills are composed of soop, aloes, and a variety of drastic sebstances; they turn black when rabbed in the hand, and emit as odor different from the genuine, while they are not so round, and somewhat larger.
